• The SPDC increases fuel prices by 500% overnight. Within three days, inflation has already impacted transport costs and essential commodities, with the price of rice doubling.

• The sharp fuel price hike sparks nationwide protests that see extraordinary participation by Burmese people from all walks of life throughout the country.

• The SPDC reacts to the peaceful protest by violently cracking down on demonstrators. Over 120 activists are arrested in connection with the demonstrations. In most cases, the regime relies on pro-junta groups to intimidate and attack protesters.

• The international community condemns the SPDC’s arrest of the protesters, calling for their immediate release, and for the junta to engage in genuine dialogue.

• 92 Burmese elected MPs seek dialogue with the SPDC over a more participatory constitution drafting process. The SPDC ignores their demands, and wraps up the convention without considering proposed amendments.

• As the SPDC Army continues to be plagued by desertions, the regime intensifies its recruitment drive in ethnic areas.

• Monsoon floods are compounding an already dire situation, with the SPDC failing to provide adequate assistance and hindering efforts of activists to help needy people.

• Thai authorities are concerned over outbreaks of cholera, malaria, and TB among Burmese refugees, because of the threat to Thai people.

KEY STORY

Fuel price hike

On 15 August, the SPDC unexpectedly increased the price of Compressed National Gas (CNG) by 500%, doubled diesel prices and increased the price of petrol by two thirds. In response, buses and taxis in Rangoon and Mandalay immediately doubled their fares. About 60% of city buses did not operate on 15 August. Most were back in service on 16 and 17, with doubled fares 50 kyat to 100 kyat, according to passengers.

Caught by surprise, some commuters didn’t have the money to get on the bus, and many car owners left gas stations with half-empty tanks. Laborers in Burma’s main cities, who earn less than 2,000 kyat

1 AP (15 Aug 07) Myanmar’s Junta Imposes a 100 Percent Fuel Hike
(US$1.50) a day, will now have to pay between half and three quarters of their wages in travel costs. High transport and fuel costs quickly impacted the rest of the economy. Within days, the price of essential commodities such as rice had already been affected. [See table Price hikes, p. 8]

Protests and crackdowns

The nationwide protests sparked by the sharp fuel price hike saw extraordinary participation by the Burmese people from all walks of life. Political activists, students, monks, and ordinary citizens appeared willing to take greater risks to demand change from the military regime. During all demonstrations, bystanders cheered and showed solidarity with the protesters.

The SPDC reacted to the peaceful protests by violently cracking down on demonstrators. In most cases, the regime relied on plainclothes security officials and thugs from the pro-junta USDA and Swan Arr Shin to intimidate and attack protesters. The USDA reportedly paid between 2,000 and 2,500 kyat per day to those who participated in the crackdowns on protesters. Others reportedly received food in addition to cash.

Below is a summary of the anti-junta demonstrations and related arrests between 19 and 31 August.

International reactions

- The United States, the United Kingdom, the EU, Canada, the Czech Republic, Ireland and Sweden demanded the immediate release of the protesters, and that the SPDC engage in genuine dialogue with the pro-democracy movement and ethnic groups.\(^{41}\)
- UN Secretary General Ban Ki-moon took a softer stance, asking the SPDC to “exercise maximum restraint in responding to any demonstrations.”\(^{42}\)
- On 26 August, UN High Commissioner for Human Rights, Louise Arbour, expressed concern over the SPDC’s arrest of student leaders and other protesters. Ms Arbour called on the SPDC to immediately release those detained and engage in consultation and dialogue with the demonstrators on their concerns.\(^{43}\)
- The UN Special Rapporteur on human rights in Burma, Paulo Sérgio Pinheiro, deplored the arrests of the peaceful protesters and appealed for their immediate release.\(^{44}\)
- On 29 August, US Representative and Chair of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Tom Lantos was joined by Senators Mitch McConnell and Dianne Feinstein in urging the US Department of State to call on the UN Security Council to hold an emergency meeting on human rights violations in Burma.\(^{45}\)

MPs alternative roadmap

On 1 August, 92 Burmese MPs elected in 1990 outlined their alternative seven-step roadmap to democracy. In a letter addressed to the UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon, the MPs called for:

- Completion of the National Convention as quickly as possible.
- Talks between the SPDC, the NLD, and ethnic nationalities on unresolved issues.
- Formation of a constitution drafting committee comprising equal number of representatives from the SPDC, the NLD, ethnic political parties, and ceasefire groups.
- Convening the parliament elected in 1990 for final approval of the draft constitution.
- Holding free and fair elections.
- Convening the new elected parliament and formation of the government according to the constitution.
- Dissolution of the SPDC.

The junta ignored the MPs’ proposal and through the controlled press dismissed the group as “ridiculous” and their demands as “unrealistic”.

National Convention: end of the farce

According to several delegates, the 11th session of the National Convention will conclude on 3 September. As with the previous sessions, the junta ignored the amendments tabled by ethnic groups, including the 19-point proposal submitted by the Kachin Independence Organization (KIO). Moreover, it appears that the junta has already unilaterally drafted the final version of the constitution, devoting much of the session to time-wasting syntactic corrections. “Actually we could have wrapped all of it up in a day, but there's a need to make it look good, isn't there?” Lt-Gen Thein Sein, Chairman of the National Convention Convening Commission, was quoted as saying.

8888 uprising marked

On 8 August, over 1,000 people led by the 88 Generation Students attended a memorial service at Rangoon’s Chaukhtatgyi pagoda for the victims of the 1988 nationwide pro-democracy uprising. Surviving participants of the 1988 uprising, relatives of political prisoners, university students, NLD members, activists, diplomats, and journalists took part in the ceremony under the close eye of plainclothes police. The anniversary was also commemorated in other parts of the world.

NLD

Despite continued harassment by the SPDC, the NLD played a key role during the August nationwide protests against the fuel price hike. NLD members organized and took part in the demonstrations. Moreover, the NLD tried to engage the SPDC in dialogue over its decision to increase fuel prices.
In addition to the 44 NLD members detained throughout August in connection with the demonstration against the fuel price hike, on 27 August, SPDC authorities arrested 14 NLD youth members in Saku Township, Magwe Division, for allegedly failing to register as overnight guests. Five of them were released hours after the arrest.54

Honorary doctorate for Daw Aung San Suu Kyi

The University of Cape Town, South Africa, will confer an honorary doctorate of law on Daw Aung San Suu Kyi in December. Vice-chancellor Njabulo Ndebele said the University wanted to honor Daw Suu for the personal sacrifices she had made for the freedom of her country's people.55

SPDC Army: desperate for soldiers

As the SPDC Army continues to be plagued by desertions, the regime intensified its recruitment drive in ethnic areas.56 In August, it was reported that the SPDC Army had been particularly active in the forcible recruitment of youth in various areas of Kachin State:

- SPDC Army forcibly recruited young gold miners in the area around Mandaung Village, Waingmaw Township.57
- Nearly 600 people were recruited in Putao District.58
- In the Phakant jade mining area, about 100 km miles west of Myitkyina, the SPDC Army recruited over 200 people, including drug users and scavengers.59
- In Moeyin Township, the SPDC Army recruited people arrested by the local fire-brigade near brothels and gambling dens.60
- The SPDC Army’s Light Infantry Battalion 320 based in Bhamo District resorted to using local businessmen involved in illegal teak trading to recruit new soldiers.61
- In Daw Hpum Yang town, on the Myitkyina-Bhamo highway, SPDC Army soldiers recruited youths from the streets, some being reportedly under the age of 18.62

SPDC intensifies pressure on ethnic groups

During the month of August, the SPDC Army intensified its efforts to control armed ethnic groups in Burma.

- The SPDC is pressuring the KIO to surrender its weapons, military bases, and business centers on the Sino-Burma border in response to the KIO’s demand for more Kachin State autonomy.63
- In early August, responding to an increased number of troops at the SPDC Army post in Changmaw Krung, Kachin State, New Democratic Army-Kachin (NDA-K) soldiers surrounded the camp and demanded its relocation.64
- On 9 August, the SPDC fired ten mortars at a Karenni National Progressive Party (KNPP) gathering on the Thai-Burma border celebrating Karenni Resistance Day.65

Flooding causes heavy damages, SPDC stands by

In August, floods provoked by heavy rains caused considerable damage in Irrawaddy, Magwe, and Tenasserim Divisions, and Mon and Kachin States. Floods destroyed housing and rice crops, and little or no assistance has come from SPDC authorities. 68 Tens of thousands of people have been made homeless in the Irrawaddy River delta. 69

• In Three Pagodas Pass, heavy floods and landslides in Mon and Karen refugee camps on 8 August destroyed houses and flooded the camp hospital when the Zami River overflowed. A thousand rubber plants were uprooted by landslides in Blaeh Doon Phike, Mon State. 70

• In Buthidaung Township, Arakan State, heavy rains and landslides on 20 August washed away and damaged about 300 acres of paddy plants. 71

• Flooding in Amarapura and Thabeikkyin Townships in Mandalay Division forced residents from their homes near the Irrawaddy River. More than 1,000 people had to move to a monastery. 72

• In Yananchaung Township, Magwe Division, storms and heavy rains caused severe flooding along the Irrawaddy River. An estimated 5,000 people living on the river front reportedly lost their homes. 73

• In Pakkoku and Minbu Townships, Magwe Division, floods claimed the homes of hundreds of families, forcing many residents to seek shelter in local monasteries. 74

SPDC hinders assistance

In August, NLD member Su Su Nway, veteran politician Win Naing, and other activists opened centers around Rangoon to provide emergency food supplies to hungry residents. 75 They also distributed clothing to flood victims and donated cash and rice to other needy people. 76 However, the SPDC swiftly intervened to hinder the activists’ efforts. On 16 August, Su Su Nway accused SPDC authorities in Hlaing Thayar Township of confiscating clothes that had been donated to about 300 flood victims. Authorities had also warned that anyone accepting aid from the activists in the future would be punished. 77 On 19 August, Win Naing had to suspend donations of rice to the poor in Rangoon after being harassed by a large group of junta-backed thugs as he was returning from a rice donation trip. 78

Bird flu

Following outbreaks of bird flu in Mon State and Pegu Division in July, villagers reported that traders continued to sell chicken, and many people continued to eat it. 79

78 IMNA (03 Aug 07) Chicken on sale secretly despite bird flu virus in Mon state
• 1 August: Hundreds of domestic chicken and ducks died suddenly in Nyaungone and Wete villages, Southern Mudon Township, from an unknown infection. Villagers fear bird flu, but there are no health workers checking the dead birds. The death of an 11 year old has also fueled rumors.

• 2 August: Villages reported authorities “sprinkled medicine” at a poultry farm in Nyaungone village where 300 birds had died. Residents report that chickens have died from bird flu in Nyaungone, Wete, Paing-kamar in Mudon Township, and Kyone-kadat village in Thanbyuzayat Township.

• 3 August: Chicken was still on sale in Thanbyuzayat Township markets, Mon State, despite bans. In fact, the price has gone up from around 4,300 kyat per kilo before the bird flu outbreak, to 5,520 kyat per kilo.

• 4 August: The SPDC announced that Burma banned poultry and livestock imports from India following a bird flu outbreak there in July.

Killer fever - again

The neglect of the health care system in Burma continues to lead to unnecessary deaths of the most vulnerable [see June and July 2007 Burma Bulletin]. The SPDC has revealed that dengue fever killed 32 people in Burma in July, of the 98 registered in the first seven months of 2007. Most of those reported are in Rangoon and Mandalay Divisions and Mon State. Patients reported that private clinics and the hospital in Moulmein and Rangoon are full of dengue patients, mostly children. According to a senior doctor, 300 children are being brought to the Rangoon Children’s Hospital every day. Patients are reportedly being forced to leave clinics without having fully recovered because the hospital has too many patients.

HUMAN RIGHTS

Custodial deaths

In August, new reports surfaced of recent cases of custodial deaths in Burma:

• 29 July: Kyaw Htay, a 36-year-old man from Meiktila, Mandalay Division, died after two days in detention at a local police station. Police arrested him on 27 July for allegedly stealing a motorbike. Kyaw Htay’s body reportedly showed signs of torture.

• 29 July: Ohn Kyaing, a 59-year-old pagoda official from Meiktila, Mandalay Division, died during his transfer from the Pan-I police station to Meiktila prison. Ohn Kyaing was arrested in late January. He was reportedly tortured throughout his detention and denied medical help when he became ill.

• 30 July: Maran Seng Awng, a 22-year-old resident of Myitkyina, Kachin State, died shortly after being transferred by the police to a local hospital. He was reportedly beaten by the police while in police custody. Police officials offered the victim’s mother one million kyat in compensation and an additional 300,000 to put an end to the investigation of Maran Seng Awng’s death.

• 8 August: Maung Htun, a 30-year-old man from Inn Taw Township, Sagaing Division, died in police custody after being arrested the previous night for stealing several packets of instant noodles and a soft drink. Maung Htun’s body showed severe bruising across the back.

Cholera, malaria outbreaks: Thai threat

On 21 August, Dr Morakot Kornkasem, Thai Deputy Minister of Public Health, said that diseases transmitted along the Thai-Burmese border, particularly drug-resistant tuberculosis, are a growing concern of the Thai Public Health Ministry. Dr Morakot said Mae Sot Hospital spent about 44 million baht (US$1.3 million) for medical services in 2006, and in 2007 is expected to spend 50 million baht.92

A cholera outbreak hit refugees living on the Thai border. Since the end of June, 66 Mae La refugees have been treated for cholera at the camp hospital. Resettlement procedures for some of the victims had to be suspended. In Mae Sot, 300 cholera patients have been treated at the local hospital, including newly arrived refugees.93

Malaysia crackdowns

Crackdowns by immigration authorities on undocumented migrant workers in Malaysia have continued, and detention centers are increasingly overcrowded.94

- 4-5 August: 150 UNHCR-registered refugees from Burma were detained during raids in Malaysia by immigration officials and thugs from the RELA “Volunteer Peoples’ Corp” in Central Selangor State.95
- 8 August: 77 undocumented migrants from Chin State living in Bartam Valley, Cameron Highland, Malaysia, were rounded up and detained.96
- 17 August: 33 people from Burma were arrested in Kuala Lumpur during a raid by Malaysian authorities and RELA, armed with sticks and batons. Among those arrested was a UNHCR-registered refugee who is eight months pregnant.97

IDPs under attack

Since the start of August, more than 1,000 people have fled SPDC Army attacks in northern Karen State.98 This brings the total number of people displaced since this offensive began in November 2005 to over 30,000.99 On 15 August, a group of more than 100 IDPs came under attack from SPDC troops. The group had been hiding in the jungle since their village was attacked in 2006. Five other villages in Papun District were attacked, mortared, and burned earlier in August by SPDC soldiers.100

ECONOMY

More gas

While the people of Burma suffered under rising fuel prices, it is clear that the junta had access to more energy resources than ever.

- 23 August: Daewoo International announced that the “Shwe” gas blocks A-1 and A-3 have been certified to hold up to 219.2 billion cubic meters of exploitable gas.101
- 24 August: Thai Energy Minister Piyasawat Amaranand said that Thailand and the SPDC are working on a project to pipe natural gas from M-9 in the Gulf of Martaban. PTT Exploration and Production will finance the natural gas production project.102
